The Haunting Face.

BY CONSTANCE F. WOOLSON.

I said; "I will not know thee whence thou art,
And though thou livest, thou art dead to me;
I seal thee in thy coffin, far apart
From all my life, from all my memory;
I weigh thee down with firm resolve and scorn,
Within thy outcast's grave to lie forlorn."
And yet, thou hauntest me!

I said: "O face, I bring thee all my gold,
With jewels, sandal-wood, and spices rare;
I bring the dearest years my life doth hold
With hoarded memories, and dreamings fair
To build a royal tomb where thou in state
Shalt lie, with guard of honor at the gate."
And yet, thou hauntest me!

I said, "Thou art not beautiful, O, face!
Thy cheeks are wan, thy far-off eyes are dim.
But here is one with budding, youthful
Who proffers me a cup filled to the brim
With life's elexir. See! I quaff its wine,
While love's enchantment, to the full, is mine."
And yet, thou hauntest me!

I said: "The wonders of the world are vast;
Mine eyes shall see them." Forth I go, in quest
Of the red-belted lightning coming fast
From out the East, and shining toward the West
I hunt the Northern lights o'er iceburgs high;
I seek the star-cross in the Southern sky.
And yet, thou hauntest me!

I said: "My heart is failing me for fear;
My schemes are shadows, and my hopes a dream;
I grasp them, and behold! they disappear—
Nor loves, nor friends, nor joys, are what they seem.
I will begin anew; I will subject
Myself, and live the straightest of my sect,"
And yet, thou hauntest me!

I said; "Art here again, O haunting face?
Speak, then, and take my curse!" Thy pale lips part;
Thy life's one love thou canst not thus efface—
I but reflect the image in thine heart;
Thine own heart knows me, though the lips may lie;
O false to thine own self! it cannot die,
This love that haunteth thee!

Selected Story.

An Old Lawyer's Story.

A great many years ago, while I was comparatively a young man, and still unmarried, I resided in a certian city of Pennsylvania, and enjoyed the reputation of being the cleverest lawyer ever known there. It is not for me to say the praise was merited, but I certainly found myself able to discover loopholes of escape for those whom I defended, which surprised even my fellow lawyers. I possessed by nature those qualities which would have made an excellent detective, and I was a thorough student of the law. There was no mystery about it, but among the more ignorant classes I had gained a reputation for more than human knowlenge. Perhaps it was not polite for them to say that the devil helped, but they did.

However, I began to tell you about Mme. Matteau.

She was an old lady, who owned a little house in the suburbs of the city. She herself was of American birth, but her husband had been a Frenchman and so the title madame had been bestowed upon her. She was now a widow, and her daughter Gabrielle and her son Henri were her only living relatives. Her income was but slender, and she eked it out by taking boarders, generally steady old people who had known her for many years. These respected and liked her; but the city generally had a prejudice against her. There had been two sudden deaths in her house. Each time the victim was a stranger who came at night and was found dead in his bed in the morniug. Each time the jury was divided—some believing that strangulation had been the cause of death, some that the man had died in a fit.

It was a terrible thing that two such deaths should have occurred beneath her roof. Madame's friends pitied her. The rest of the little world hinted that these were strangers, and their trunks, with no one knew how much money and other valuable property, remained in madame,s possession. No one said she was a murderess, but every one said it was "very strange," in an odd tone, and no one since that second death had visited Mme, Mateau.

I myself—perhaps because I had admired her a great deal, and her daughter much more—had always insisted that it was merely a coincidence, and that in a world in which apoplexy and heart disease were so common, it was no such marvel that two men should have met such sudden deaths in the same house. But my faith in the theory was shaken when one morning it was published over the city that another transient boarder had been found dead in Mme. Mateau's house, and that she was arrested on suspicion of having murdered him, his watch and chain having been found in her possession.

Before I had recovered from the shock of this terrible piece of news, a message came to me from Mme. Matteau. She desired to see me. Of course I went to her at once.

She had been taken to prison and I found her in a little room with a barred window, and an insufficient fire upon the hearth. The logs had burned in twe upon the andirons, and the white ashes were scattered over the hearth. Almost in them sat Mme. Matteau, in her widow's dress of sombre black.

She was chilly with grief and excitement, and had drawn her chair close to the fire.

She shook violently from head to foot, and her face was deadly pale as she turned it toward me and held out her hand.

"Oh, thank heaven, you have come!" she said; "I know you can save me. Is it not horible? How could I kill a man? Why should I? Why do people come to my house to die? To die horribly with black faces and starting eyes, as if somebody had choked them? Ugh!—and he was a pretty young man the night before. Oh, good heaven, how horrible!"

I sat down behind her. I took her hand.

"Mme. Matteau," I said, "be calm; collect yourself. As your lawyer I must know all. Tell me, from first to last, what happened—what was said, what was done. If you——"

I paused; her black eyes had flashed upon me. I could not ask her whether she had any confession to make. I saw that she had not. Unless she was the best actress who ever lived, Mme. Matteau was innocent of any crime.

"If you have any suspicions," I added, "tell them all to me."

"There is no one to suspect," sobbed the poor woman.

"In the house were Gabrielle, my daughter, whom you have seen; old Hannah, the cook; Mr. and Mrs. Beauchamp, friends of my poor dear husband in his bovhood—the best, kindest people: Mr. Gray, a very old man, too feeble to leave the house; poor; deformed Miss Gorman, and the Librarian, Mr Bassford. None of these would murder a mouse. See how kind they are; they remain in my house; they send me word that they have no doubt of me. Oh, how can anybody?"

"And this man who—" I began.

"Yes," said Mme. Matteau. "I will tell you; he was fair, young, handsomely dressed; he asked Mr. Bassford at the depot if he knew of any one who could accommodate him. Mr. Bassford brought him home. My only empty room was the one in which those other two strangers died. I could not bear to put him there, but Mr. Bassford laughed at me. We had supper afterward. He talked a long while to Gabrielle. It was late he retired—late for a quiet household. Hannah had made his fire. She came and told us that she had done so. He said good night.

"After he had gone we found that he had left his watch on the table. He wore it only with a bunch of seals, and he had been setting it by the clock, and showing it to us as something very handsome. I knocked at his door to restore it to him. He had not left us but fifteen minutes before; but he must have been asleep already, for he made no answer. So I kept it for the night, and wore it down to breakfast next morning. As I came down I met a gentleman in the hall. He inquired for Mr. Glen. That was the new comer's name. I sent Hannah to wake him. She had a key that would open the door, and used it. The next thing I knew we were all in the room and the windows were wide open, and the doctor had been sent for; and the young man who had called was screaming that his brother had been choked to death; and there was the inquest, and they arrested me. The brother said the first thing to be noticed was that I wore Mr. Glen's watch and seals. I had forgotten it in my terror."

"So Hannah had a key to the room?" I said.

"Yes; at least it was a key that would open it. It was the key to Mr. Bassford's door. She knocked the other out with a stick and put that in."

"The people who were there on that night were your boarders when the other men were found dead," I asked.

"Oh, yes!"

"And Hannah was there also?"

"All my married life Hannah has lived with me."

"Your daughter oversees your household in your absence?"

"Yes, poor child, with Hannah's help."

I thought awhile.

"Madame," I said, "there is some strange mystery in the affair. I do not despair of proving your entire innocence. Meanwhile, be as calm as possible, and endeavor to remember evrything connected with the sudden deaths that have occurred in your house. The incident that seems the least important may really be of the most immense value."

So I left and went home. Strange enough, on the way I met the doctor who had been called in. He was a dull, heavy sort of a person, considerably given to beer drinking, and my opinion of his ability was not very great. However, I questioned him on the subject, and he replied:

"Well, you see, I don't say the old woman murdered him. If she did, I should say it was by sitting on them, or smothering him with the bolsters. I suppose the cause of his death was asphyxia. Well, then, what is asphyxia? Why, too little breath to keep one living. He died because he was short of breath. I wash my hands on that matter. Only there's the watch that looks dark."

I had leaned nothing from the doctor. The coroner lived near me. His jury had been twelve of the most ignorant men in town.

This is all he told me.

"He was smothered, that man was, so were the other two. Men don't smother themselves. We made it inscrutable Providence t other time. We made it murder this time. That there watch you know."

Thus, without any new light, I went home and formed my plans. There was but one one way to penetrate the mystery I must enter the house; I must see the people there; I must penetrate to the room in which these men had died so suddenly, and I must not be known in my real character. That Mme. Matteau was innocent I fully believed, but that some one was guilty I made no doubt. It might be the librarian, Mr. Bassford, whose key fitted the dead man's door. It was possible; but no, I would not harbor a mad superstition. There could be no supernatural power beneath which human being dropped and died. Death as it came to us all was mysterious enough. What had been said to me by a woman, who would have been a spiritualist had she lived to day, was a mere absurdity.

"I believe that there is some horrible unseen thing in the room," she said, "some awful shapeless spirit, that when it is locked in with the victim murders him. Let others believe what they will, I believe that."

The words haunted me, but I laughed at them, of course. Whatever it was I would try to know. I had a plan.

At dusk I went into my bedroom myself. I came out a strange man. I wore a white wig, a pair of green goggles and an overcoat, the tails of which reached to my heels. I had a muffler about my throat, and a little hunch on one of my shoulders. I carried a thick cane, and stooped a great deal as I walk d. In my hands I carried a carpet-bag, and in my bosom a pair of pistols well loaded.

As I passed out into the street the early moon was just rising; she lit me on my way to the door of Mme. Matteau's house.

It was opened for me when I knocked, by old Hannah. Her eyes were red and swollen. Then I told her that I was a stranger, and had received Mme. Matteau's address from a gentlemen in New York, and desired to stay all night under her roof. She shook her head.

"I don't think you can," she said, "The lady is away from home. Besides we are in trouble here. I don't think Miss Gabriella would—"

But here Miss Gabriella herself appeared.

"I am an old man, Miss," I said, "and as you see, quite infirm. I dread another step. I should take it as a kindness if you would accomodate me, and I will pay you any price you ask."

Miss Gabriella looked at Hannah.

"We have only one room," she said, "and that—"

I ended the question of my stay by begging to be taken to it.

"You will have supper, sir?" asked the girl.

But I declared that I had eaten, and only wanted rest.

Her reply was:

"Hannah, show the gentleman to the blue room and make a fire."

I was in the blue room, the scene of the three sudden deaths or murders. It was a small apartment, painted blue, it had also blue window curtains, and a blue silk coverlet on the bed a neat striped carpet, a set of old mahogany furniture, and a very handsome ewer and a besin of costly china. It was at that time almost a universal custom to burn wood. In this room, however, was a small coal fire. I alluded to this as Hannah came in with the scuttle,

"Yes, sir," she said. "Miss's does burn coals. Her son is a clerk or the like at the new mines at Mauch Chunk, and he sends it cheap to her; but it's a nasty, dirty-smelling thing, and I hate it. Now it's built and lit, twill warm up in fifteen minutes. It takes longer than wood."

She went out of the door and came back in a minute with a little tray on which stood a pot and a cup and saucer, laso a bowl and a tiny pitcher, and something in a napkin.

"Miss sent bit and a sip," said she, "Tea rest us old folks mightily. Good night."

"Good night," I said, "I expect I shall sleep soon; I must be up very early, though, for I have some bills to pay. I have some hundreds of dollars with me to pay out to-morrow, and its in this bag."

She looked at me in a queer sort of a way and lingered beside me. At last she spoke:

"Look ye, sir; I think that old folks of your age do wrong to lock doors on themselves. You might be ill at night, and who'd get into you? Leave your door unlocked."

Was it this woman's practice to beg travelers who stopped with her mistress to lock the door? Was there some baneful portion in the cup she had given me?

It was an innocent-looking cup enough—an old-fashioned affair covered with little gilt springs. The tea was fragrant Hyson; but the suspicion that had crept into my mind had tainted it. I fancied a strange color, a curious smell. I put it from me and would not have tasted it for a kingdom.

I had not intended to sleep, and I did not undress myself. I merely removed my disguise, and sat down beside the table with my pistols beside me. That some attempt might be shortly made to murder me I felt to be possible. I thought of all the old tales I had heard of trap doors, and sliding panels, and secret entrances to travelers rooms. I was not a coward, but I felt strangely nervous, and singularly enough for a man in my perfect health my hands were growing cold, and my feet were lumps of ice, while my head was burning hot.

Fifteen minutes had passed and the fire was kindled, but the room was not warm. The blue flames struggled among the black coals, and flung forked tongues tipped with yellowish tints, into the room. There was nothing cheerful about the stove, though it was of that open style now called Franklin. Yet I drew my chair toward it from habit, and sat with feet upon the hearth. I do not know how long I sat there. Suddenly I became aware that I was not myself. I was losing my sense. If unseen hands had been clasped about my neck, and an unseen knee been pressed against my chest, my sensation could not have been different.

A thought of the evil spirit which my friend had suggested faintly struggled into my mind. As I staggered to my feet a noise like the roaring of a sea was in my ear. The flames of a candle turned to a great yellow blue. I barely retain I strength enough to stagger to the window and fling it open. The fresh, cold winter air rushed in at it. It gave me inspiration but it relieved me for a moment more I was able to clamber out of it upon the shed below.

There I remained until the day dawn. With my returning sense the truth came to me. That which had murdered the three men who slept before me in the blue chamber was nothing more or less than the coal stove.

It was provided with what is called a damper, and this being caught in a manner which closed it sent the poisonous air into the room: It had been kindled as a wood fire would have been at the hour of retiring, by one quite ignorant of the danger possible from coal gas, and they had slept never to awaken. Had I thrown myself upon the bed, I also should have been found dead at daylight in all probability.

As for the fact that neither doctor nor coroner discovered the truth, I have but to say that they were not deeply scientific men.

Of course I rejoiced the household by my discovery next morning, and equally, of course, Mme. Matteau, who not only was freed from suspicion, but became the object of universal sympathy. She was always grateful to me, and she proved her gratitude by giving what I soon asked for, the hand of her doughter Gabrielle in marriage.

Miscellaneous.

Eating Without an Appetite.

Hall says:—It is wrong to eat without an appetite, for it shows there is no gastric juice in the stomach, and that nature does not need food; and not needing it, there being no fluid to receive and act upon it, it remains there only to putrefy, the very thought of which should be sufficient to deter any man from eating without an appetite for the remainder of his life. If a tonic is taken to whet the appetite it is a mistaken course, for its only result is to cause one to eat more, when already an amount has been eaten beyond what the gastric is able to prepare. The object to be obtained is a larger supply of gastric juice, not a larger supply of food; and whatever fails to accomplish that essential object fails to have any efficiency towards the cure of dyspeptic diseases. The formation of gastric juces is directly proportioned to the wear and tear of the system, which is to be the means of supplying, and this wear and tear can only take ploce as the result of exercise. The efficient remedy for dyspepsia is work—out-door work—beneficial and successful in direct proportion as it is agreeable, interesting and profitable.

It is now estimated that about $6,000,000 worth of sugar was lost during the flood in Louisiana.

THE CENTENNIAL.

The Centennial Commissioners at Philadelphia are hard at work arranging for the great exhibition. There are certain special exhibits which have no commercial value, for which dependence must be placed on the enthusiasm and interest of persons and organizations. Among these may be mentioned: An extensive and complete display of agricultural products, with full information concerning the culture, yield, etc., of each article: An exhibit of all branches of the iron industry, including specimens of ore, pig metal, bar and sheet iron, steel, etc.; models of mines, furnaces and mills, statistical charts, etc: A collection of native metallic ores of all kinds. A Fisheries exhibit, comprising specimens of all the food fishes of the United States, the nets, tackle, boats, etc., used in their capture, and the processes of curing and packing: A Railway exhibit, including not only engines and cars, but all improvements in switches, signals, track constructions, and models or drawings of the finest stations and bridges in the country: An educational exhibit, furnished chiefly by the several States with the assistance and advice of the Bureau of Education in Washington: A collection of all the newspapers and periodicals in the country: A model American farm-house with barns and out buildings and a model city house, to display all the comforts, conveniences, and labor-saving appliances which the growing taste for luxury and ease has brought into domestic life: Some kind of religious exhibit, showing the power and prosperity of church organizations and the spread of religion in a country where the government lets religion alone: Models of churches, religious papers and books, Sunday-school pictures, maps, books, etc., would be in place in this exhibit.

THE TIME FOR CALM REFLECTION.

While we acknowledge that every man, be his condition or color what it may, is our political equal-having the same right with ourselves before the law—we do not acknowledge that all are our social equals any more than we do that they are our equals intellectually. And yet the attempt was made by the Democrats in the late campaign to force such acknowledgements upon the Republican party, and by it they made political capital.

Now that the excitements of the campaign are over, let the people come back to reason and consider the question in the light of Truth, Justice and Right. Think, reflect, watch events, and it will be found that the aims and purposes of the Republican party have been most wickedly misrepresented, and that the result of the recent election was mainly achieved by an appeal to the worst prejudices of an over excited people.

Fortunately there is now hope for a two years calm. They will afford time for cool reflection, thoughtful study and earnest examination. Let every good citizen resolve to use them in a serious determination,

"If right, still in the right to stay,
If wrong, to find the better way,"

so that when next he casts his ballot he can feel the assurance that he has conscientiously performed a freeman's duty.

COMPLIMENT TO THE PRESS.

The Rev. W. G. STARR, President of the Murfreesboro Female College, and one of the most eloquent Ministers of the country, in a sermon lately delivered at the Granby Street Methodist Episcopal Church at Norfolk, Va., paid the following just and deserved compliment to the press:

We live in an age of light. Darkness may live for a time under her cavern roof, but there she cannot dwell forever. The mighty voice of the people will be heard, and the people are shouting for light The pulpit gives her imperial answer every Sabbath; the press rings the eco back through all the year. The newspaper reaches the man who never enters the sanctuary. Give to any land the freedom of the press, and you bring the very sun out of the sky to kindle the light of truth in that land. The wrong may be hidden for a while, but the press will unearth it. The foot of the criminal may be fleet, and the barrier behind him strong, but the hand of the press will drag him from his retreat among the rocks and scourage him to the scaffold in the presence of all the people. Yes, I say, thank God for the liberty of the press.

The Democratic editors at Raleigh are having a lively time. There is neither love, harmony or peace in the camp. The fight is between TURNER of the Sentinel and STONE of the News. The latter is out in a card closing with the following strong language;

I repeat now again the closing paragraph of my card published December 3d, 1873:

"I charge that in continuing to heap charges against myself and my paper, which have not a shadow of foundation, but which he thinks his "blistering pen," by constant repetition, can make the public believe, he has descended to the last depths of scoundrelism, and I brand him before the world, as a base calumniator, a wilful liar and a low, contemptible, malicious poltroon."

INCREASE OUR FARM PRODUCTIONS

We believe it was EMERSON who said: "The true poet is an inspired prophet." Did any of our readers ever think what an inspiration lies in the poet's declaration that "the greatest benefactor of mankind is he who makes two blades of grass grow where one grew before?" If not, look at the census returns showing, for instance, the enormous value of the hay crop of the Northern States.

The same crop can be raised in the South. All that is needed is the knowledge how to do it and the will to do it. The census shows that the value of the farm productions in the United States in the year 1870 was considerably over two thousand millions of dollars. This is a vast interest. By the proper effort it could be doubled. Here in the South the soil is not made to produce to one third its capability. We need more study, more observation, a more thorough knowledge of nature. These will yet gives us our "two blades of grass" and multitudes of other benefactions.

OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

There is, unfortunately, too little interest taken in our public schools. The truth is, our school laws must be thoroughly revised before a good system can be organized. Before the war there was a school fund of considerable amount. It was lost by the war. The present law gives no right of local taxation, and does not require the maintenance of public schools by any town. The County Commissioners are not authorized to levy a school tax unless the majority of the votes given at an election holden for that purpose so direct. We learn from the State Superintendent that a very large number of the counties that have voted at all are opposed to taxation for the support of schools. Many counties have not voted at all. There are districts that would gladly tax themselves to maintain free schools from six to eight months in the year.

THE OFFICIAL MAJORITY FOR CONGRESS.

Modern experiments in agriculture have abundantly demonstrated the good effects of labor judiciously bestowed on small parcels of ground in the production of returns vastly beyond what has been usual, in times past, under other systems of cultivation, requiring larger tracts for the attainment of smaller crops. Now, what does this prove, but that more land has heretofore, and is still, put under tillage than is necessary for a given amount of produce, and that a little land made fertile by the skillful hand of tillage, is of more value than a much larger quantity put to use with inferior results.

It is really amusing to see how some of the politicians of the West are haunting the Conventions of the grangers. They are stuffing wisps of hay down their coat collars and smearing their boots with the soil of the barn yard to attract the favorable attention of the Patrons of Husbandry. Demagoguery knows no limits.

OUR CORRESPONDENCE

Artificial Fish Culture.

CAPE HATTERAS, Dare Co, N.C., August 17th, 1874.

To the Editor of the North Carolinian:

Now that the election is over and you will perhaps have space to appropriate to other topics I will ask permission to make a few remarks on a subject of vast importance to Eastern North Carolina; especially the Albemarle and Pamlico Districts. It is "Artificial Fish Culture." I have thought it strange that you have never given that subject any consideration; or rather any comment in the columns of your valuable paper, as you have the important branches of science and improvement for the general good of the people of your section. In my opinion there is not a more favorable locality for hatching fish by an artificial process in the United States than the rivers and creeks of eastern North Carolina The experiment has been tried with great success at the North, and why can it not be done in North Carolina. I am snre it can be and I think it will be done at no distant day. If not by our own people it will be done by some enterprising parties from the North. There are several kinds of food fishes that frequent the waters of Eastern North Carolina that might be increased in abundance simply by affording some means of protection to the spawn and the young. That of course would increase the quantity taken or caught annually, at the same rate, and thereby prove a source of benefit to the entire community.

I will name some of the food fish that deposits the spawn in our rivers and creeks that might be increased as above stated, by an artificial process, which may perhaps cause some of your readers to take up the subject and give their views, so that the matter may become interesting to the public and perhaps some one may be induced to try the experiment. There is the shad, the trout, the mullet, the spot and the herring, all of which deposit the spawn somewhere in our principal rivers and creeks, where there is no protection for them against their natural enemies.

Please give the foregoing a place in your columns and make any remarks you may think necessary and let it be brought to the notice of the fishermen on the coast and on the sounds and rivers, who, it is hoped will give their honest views upon the subject.

Very respectfully,
ATLANTIC.

Marshal Bazaine's Escape.

The French either are or profess to be greatly excited over the escape of Marshal Bazaine from his prison on the isle of St Marguerite, to which he was condemned for the period of twenty years. He disappeared on the night of Sunday the 9th inst. There are various accounts and surmises in regard to the means by which he effected his escape The first account, which we give below, the wife of Marshal Bazaine declares was substantially true. She says she planned the affair herself, and had no accomplice except one of her relatives.

The apartments occupied by Marshal Bazaine open upon a terrace, which was built upon a lofty and precipitous cliff overhanging the sea. A sentry was posted on the terrace with orders to watch the prisoner's every movement. During Sunday evening the Marshal walked upon the terrace with Colonel Villette, his aide-de-camp. At ten o'clock he retired as usual, apperently to sleep, but before daybreak he had effected his escape. He must have crossed the terrace in the dead of night and, eluding the sentinel, gained the edge of the precipice. Thence by means of a knotted rope, he descended to the sea. He evidently slipped during the descent and tore his hands, as the rope was fonnd stained with blood in several places. Under the cliff in a hired boat were Bazaine's wife and cousin. They received him as he reached the water, and Madame le Marchale, taking the oars herself, rowed directly toward a strange steamer, which had been lying off the island since the previous evening. They reached the vessel in safety and were taken on board, and the steamer then put to sea. It is stated that the plan for the escape was arranged some weeks before.

These accounts do not seem to have satisfied the French authorities, and numerous arrests of officials connected with the prison have been made. But it is suggested that the government does not greatly regret that the Marshal is out of its hands and the French people are so apt to make their great men criminals and idols by turns, that notwithstanding he has broken his parole of honor, he will possibly turn at no distant day in some exalted position. When last heard from, he was said to be at Cologne, and to be on his way to visit the Empress Eugenie.

The Influence of Newspapers.

The Boston Traveler states that a school teacher who had enjoyed the benefit of a long practice of his profession, and had watched closely the influence of a newspaper upon the minds of a family of children, gives as a result of his observation that without exception those scholars of both sexes and all ages who have access to newspapers at home, when compared with those who have not, are: 1, Better readers, excelling in pronunciation, and consequently read more understandingly. 2. They are better spellers, and define words with care and accuracy. 3. They obtain a partial knowledge of geography in almost half the time it requires others, as the newspaper has made them familiar with the location of important places and nations, their governments and doings, 4. They are better grammarians, for having become familiar with every variety of style in the newspaper, from commonplace advertise nents to the finished and classical oration of the statesman, they more readily comprehend the meaning of the text, and consequently analyze its contents with accuracy.

Paul Boynton, a somewhat noted pearl diver of Atlantic City, is soon to go to New York to make arrangements for what might be reasonably termed a hazardous undertaking. Mr. C. S. Merriman of New York, the patentee of the life-dress, has offered $500 to Mr. Boynton to make a sea voyage in his suit, in order to demonstrate to the public its merits as a life-preserver. He has accepted the proposal, and on or about the 25th of September he will be carried from New York by an outwardbound steamer to a distance not less than two hundred miles from land, when he will be dropped and left to the mercy of the waves until he shall meet a passing vessel. He will carry with him in a rubber bag sufficient rations consisting of dried meats etc., for one week, as well as a good quanity of fresh water. He will also carry signal lights and flags, with a sectional staff twelve feet long, for raising them, all of which are to be stowed away in the unlimited portals of the rubber bag, which is about two feet square, and is little or no inconvenience, strapped to and floated at the side of the swimmer. Thefeat by many may be considered as deliberately challenging death, but Mr. Boynton is very sanguine of success, and even says that he would willingly allow himself to be left a thousand miles out, if necessary, without the slightest fears regarding his safe recovery. He places implicit confidence in the Merriman lifesuit, and feels an anxiety to have its merits thoroughly tested and laid before the public. In order to accomplish this object he has chosen the mentioned date as the one when he will be most likely to encounter the severe equinoctial gales.

Summary of News.

Mr. J. G. Cooley, of Middle Hill farm, North Franklin, Conn., has announced his intention to make his homestead a home for fifty aged and destitute printers, and in the meanwhile solicits discussion and criticism from the press. Mr. Cooley began life as a practical printer, became the proprietor of the Norwich Courier, drifted to New York, grew rich in the manufacture of wooden type, and now in the maturity of his life devotes himself and his resources to the realization of a life-long purpose. Editors who have been practical printers are to be included among the beneficiaries.

A young girl at Trenton, N. J., the daughter of a respectable farmer, was decoyed from her home some days ago by a woman comparatively strange to her, for the alleged purpose of replying in person to an advertisement for "intelligent young ladies to go to New England to engage in light and respectable employment, paying from $4 to $6 a day." She was taken to a house in Newark where she was told she would have to sell nooks about the war, and was to have left on the day following for New England, when fortunately her father succeeded in tracing her, and had the parties arrested.

In the British medical naval report just issued, a fatal case of poisoning by tobacco is mentioned. A boy on the Implacable had frequently been reproved for chewing tobacco, and on several occasions swallowed pieces to prevent detection. On the night of his death he was heard breathing stertorously, and efforts to arouse him being vain, he was taken to the sick bay. His pupils were insensible to the light, and his pulse beat feebly. He died in two or three minutes after: Two small pieces of tobacco were found in his stomach.

An inveterate toper, in a locality where the ardent was under ban, put some rock candy in a bottle, rubbed the neck with camphor, and then had the druggist fill it with whisky, the wife of the purchaser was "troubled so much with the headache."

A Missouri paper says;—"Yesterday we counted eleven able-bodied farmers, whose grass and oats needed cutting, sitting on dry goods boxes complaining of hard times."

Col. Bagg, of Holland Patent, says any man who cuts hay when the dew is on makes a mistake. Grass is worth one sixteenth more if cut when the dew is off.

A man in Stark county, Ind., pays his boy ten cents a quart for potatoe bugs, and the boy says that if next year is as good as this, he can buy the old man out.

An Iowa correspondent asserts that there is much dissatisfaction among Grangers in regard to the finances of the Order and the salaries paid some of the officers.

We read that farmers in Willamette Valley, Oregon, are selling their cows at $6 to $10 per head, and plowiug up their pastures to make room for more wheat.

A bloated animal may be relieved, so they say, by adminsstering half a teacup ful of finely powered charcoal, well mixed in a bottle of water.

Col F. D. Curtis reports the recent slaughter at his farm, Kirpy Homestead, Charlton, N. Y, of a Berkshire pig whose dressed weight was 605¼ pounds.

A farmer thinks the words, "Ho every one that thirsteth," should read, "Thirst every one that hoeth."

"WE AND OUR NEIGHBORS"
is the latest and raciest work by
HARRIET BEECHER STOWE,
Author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "The Minister's Wooing" "My Wife and I," and other powerful stories, each the literary sensation of its period; and this story promises a like genuine and Wholesome sensation; It bears directly on social topics of interest, embracing the romance of youthful companionship' the brightness of happy home.life, the spicy complications of neighborhood association, and such follies and profound domestic mysteries as have led to the widespread Temperance movement of the day.

Mrs STOWE is now in the prime of that genius which wrote "Uncle Tom," ripened by years of study and observation. Her novels are immensely popular, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" alone out-selling by hundreds of thousands any edition of any original work ever published—save the Bible. Her book two years ago, "My Wife and I," outsold every contemporary. Such a pure and ennobling story as "We and Our Neighbors" should be read in every home. This attractive Serial is just beginning exclusively in the Weekly Family Newspaper.
The Christian Union,
Henry Ward Beecher,

It is acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most reliable preparation ever introduced for the relief and cure of all Lung complaints, and is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years. When resorted to in season it seldom fails to effect a speedy cure in the most severe cases of Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Influenza, Asthma, Colds, Sore Throat, Pains or Soreness in the Chest and Side, Liver Complaint, Bleeding at the Lungs, &c. THE DAILY GRAPHIC

The only Illustrated Daily Newspaper in the World.

With its issue for March 4, 1874, THE DAILY GRAPHIC entered upon the second year of a career phenomenal in the history of journalism. Its story of a twelvemonths has been a steady and unquestioned growth in popular acceptance as the most original, artistically luxurious, and wonderfully comprehen-sive metropolitan journal ever published in the United States.

As a brilliant novelty, the whole country has confessed its unique attraction; as a practical and marvellously complete Newspaper, it has become a daily necessity to the social and mercantile interests of one of the largest permanent constituencies ever attained by a journalistic enterprise in the same period, while its great specialty, beyond all actuality or hope of competition, as has been the wonder, delight, and new education of individuals and homes in every State of the Union. In the very idea of such utilization of the finest pictorial art, for every day's information and reflection, there is all the charm of a romance; and the realization of that idea, made visible in THE DAILY GRAPHIC, is a practical and ever-varying assimilation of the most fascinating Ornament with the commonest Use which never palls upon even the most pampered taste. From the first issue the successive multitude of its pictures has been a perfect study of mechanical and journalistic development; the inevitable early imperfections of artists and others, not yet thoroughly trained in the new process, disappearing steadily in an as steadily increasing accurancy and beauty of artistic effects. Indeed this very illustration, from day to day, of the Time's spirit of progress in Art, as well as in Events has been an added and piquant interest, which is yet to be maintained for the public by unending future "Graphic" improvements. Scarcely more, however, for its beautiful portraits, trenchant cartoons, vivid news-etching, and unequalled reprodnctions of the world's choicest works of art, than for its unrivalled attractions as has THE DAILY GRAPHIC been nationally recognized and popularly welcomed. Its genuine editorial independence, wide sweep of intelligence, ever-varying department of literary and persona interest, sparkling correspondence and pungent criticisms, make it as much a favorite in the sanctum of the great Western or Southern or Northern newspapers as in the counting-room and the family circle.

A SUPERB PICTORIAL MIRROR

DAILY HISTORY,

NEWS, SOCIETY, AND LITERATURE.

THE DAILY GRAPHIC is an Eight-page Paper, published every afternoon (three editions), in time for the errly mails to all parts of the country.

THE DAILY GRAPHIC has a larger average circulation—more copies printed and sold each day—than any other evening paper in New York excipting only the [penny] News.

THE DAILY GRAPHIC is a great newspaper, as well as the only illustrated daily paper. It has special correspondents everywhere, and it has a larger staff of writers and news-gatherers than any other evening paper in New York.

THE DAILY GRAPHIC is preserved for binding by hundreds of its readers in city and country. The annual subscriber gets a Pictorial History of the Year, a volume of twenty-four hundred pages, constituting a valuable record of events and a graphic panorama of our time and progress.

TERMS.

To Mail Subscriber..... ....$12 a year.

☞ New subscribers wishing to take THE DAILY GRAPHIC on trial, may send One Dollar and receive the paper four weeks. It is the determination of the authorities to enforce this penalty. The party notified must either work himself on the day specified by the Town Constable, send a hand, or pay one dollar to be expended for labor on the streets.

☞It was COLERIDGE who said there are four kinds of readers. The first is like the hour glass, and their reading is as the sand, it runs in and out and leaves not a vestige behind. A second is like the sponge, imbibes everything, and returns it in nearly the same state, only a little dirtier. A third is like a jelly bag, allowing all that is pure to pass away, and retaining only the refuse and dregs. And the fourth is like the slave in the diamond mines of Golconda, who, casting aside all that is worthless, retains only pure gems.

☞We have our opinions on political and other questions and we are in the habit on all proper occasions of honestly and earnestly expressing them. We never have any apologies to make for entertaining them, nor do we stop to ask any one's leave, sir," before giving them utterance. While we respect other people's rights in this matter we desire it to be distinctly understood that in the future as in the past we shall fearlessly exercise it for ourself. Observing the amenities of journalism we shall ever insist upon its freedom and on all occasions vindicate its independence.

☞Said an honest and well meaning but not over intelligent country farmer the other day; "I voted the Democratic ticket this year because I couldn't stand that part of the Civil Rights Bill which would make me have my colored help sit at the same table with my family. That was a little too rough for me." He with hundreds of others, was made to believe that this was really so. What punishment too severe for those who wilfully deceive the innocent and ignorant. And on the other hand, what an argument in favor of education and intelligence.

☞The following, from a gentleman now residing in a distant part of the state, is appreciated. Having become in every sense, identified with this "section of North Carolina," we propose continuing our " efforts in behalf of its material interests."

Please find herein ($5) Five dollars for amount due you for subscription.

While differing with you somewhat in your political conduct of the Carolinian, I must, in this connection, praise your effort in behalf the material interests of the dear old section of North Carolina in which I was born and raised, and in which the dearest friends, I posess, live. The counties east of Chowan River and north of Albemarle Sound are the garden spot of the world—and its people are as rich in the characteristics of true manhood as the soil by whose products they have been matured.

☞Our cotemporary of the Washington Echo, like the boy with his first pair of new boots, can scarcely contain himself. The late political victory being the first one he ever experienced, he flops his wings and crows—keeps on crowing. Well, we like to see people feel good, even our political opponents. They have had a hard time of it. For long, long years they have been freezing and starving on the bleak and barren banks of Salt River, and to get permission to come back, though it be but for two years, causes those who, like our cotemporary, are fussy and demonstrative, to manifest a foolish exuberance of joy. But our cotemporary is not only jubilant, he is noisy. Constructed upon the principle of a tin horn, the noise is in proportion to the volume of wind expanded from the smallest opening. With the exception of the Katydid, the editor of the Echo can make more noise in proportion to his size than any creature of a vocal sort it has pleased Divine Providence to create. To some peoples' ears this noise may be irritating, exasperating; but to ours it is perfectly harmless.

☞A friend from New York sends us the following melancholly notice of the attempted suicide of Mr. MONTROSS whose wife, it will be remembered, died at this place a few weeks ago. While here Mr. M. made a very favorable impression on our people:

Arthur Montross, a native of Canastota and a bookkeeper at 39 Wall street, in the office of William A. Greenleaf, Secretary of the Elizabeth City and Norfolk Railroad Company, attempted to commit suicide yesterday morning. Two weeks ago his wife died in Elizabeth City N. C. She was buried in Peekskill, the home of her relatives. Since that time Mr. Montross has repeatedly said to his friends that he was anxious to join his wife Yesterday morning he seemed in better spirits than usual, and chatted pleasantly with a friend in the private office. Fifteen minutes later Mr. Greenleaf found Mr. Montross unconscious on the lounge. He had taken laudanum. An ounce vial of the poison, half empty, was found at his side. Montross was taken to the New street police station, and from there to the Park Hospital, where he was attended by Dr. Hall. He is now out of danger.

☞We occasionally hear complaints from Post Masters that packages of the NORTH CAROLINIAN are not received. The fault is not ours. We mail them regularly.

☞In this Judicial District the majority of EURE for Judge is 1586 and for WHEDBEE for Solicitor 1255. In this Senatorial District JERNIGAN's majority is 332 and SHAW's 327.

☞P. H. WINSTON, Esq., editor of the Windsor Times, was in the city last week and paid us a friendly visit. Having but recently entered the profession he feels the enthusiasm always experienced by the young journalist who engages in the work, determined to make his mark. He says that he proposes making himself "a newspaper man." We forgot to caution him in using the term as a certain Federal Judge living in Eastern Carolina claims, we believe, a patent right for it. But that we leave for our young brother and his Honor to settle. The Times is a live and vigorously conducted paper. Like the CAROLINIAN it believes in the development and progress of our section and people both materially and intellectually. Having visited the North and for some years lived in one of its great cities, its editor like ourself, fully understands where in the South is lacking and appreciates the fact that our people can only become what they ought to be by encouraging and employing the agencies that have developed the North and made it rich and independent and happy. Call again brother WINSTON.

☞We have recently received several communications from gentlemen who, while not agreeing with us politically endorse the dignified tone that has ever characterized the NORTH CAROLINIAN. We thank them both for their kindly expressions and for their support. We hold that the true mission of the press is to educate, to elevate, and yet we can not avoid a feeling of shame and regret when we look around and scrutinize the present field of journalism. What the bigoted Puritan did for Christianity; what SCUDERI did for the literature and language of love; what FALSTAFF did for the career of the soldier, too many of the Publishers and Editors of this country are now doing for the newspaper By their presumption they are making it ignoble; by their conduct they are making it despicable; by their disreputable action and irresponsible mendacity they are making honorable men blush that they work in the same field and can be possibly designatad by the same appellation. There is but one sure correction for these abuses; it is the voice of the great body of of the people. They are the jury. No one can doubt what will be their verdict. The NORTH CAROLINIAN sets its face firmly against what it believes disreputable and demoralizing and it is gratified to know that the just and honest public endorses it.

☞At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Albemarle Agricultural Society held on the 24th inst., it was decided to hold the second Annual Fair on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, October 28th, 29th and 30th. The Premium List will be published as early as possible, the buildings on the grounds will be enlarged and every possible preparation will be made to make the Fair a grand success. The cooperation not only of the citzens of Pasquotank but those also of our neighboring counties is earnestly solicited. The objects of the exhibition being to benefit all by advancing the domestic agricultural, mechanical and industrial interests of this whole Albemarle country, the Committee hopes that the efforts they are making, the time they are spending and the labor they are bestowing in planning, sustaining and pushing forward the enterprise will be heartily and liberally responded to by the public. It was the universal testimony of strangers who visited us last fall that our Fair in its various departments equalled all and excelled many they had attended. It was our first effort. Let us be encouraged to do as well if not better this year, and we will all feel the gratifying assurance that we have successfully contributed to the pleasure of our people and erected another milestone in our material progress. Then, one and all, get ready for the Fair. Think of the articles you will bring to add to the number and variety, and at once begin to make the necessary preparation. Gen. MATT W. RANSOM, United States Senator, will deliver the address.

AN UNWHOLESOME SEASON.—The closing days of winter and the early days of spring are very trying to the feeble and sensitive and are apt to affect unpleasantly even the more robust and vigorous. Nothing can be more depresing to the spirits than damp, chilling winds, fogs and cold rains, and of such unwelcome visitors we have a superabundance at this season. Common prudence suggest, therefore, the propriety of fortifying the system against these insidious enemies of health and comfort, and the experience of more than a quater of a century points to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as the all-sufficient sanitary safeguard under such untoward circumstances. An accession of vita strength and energy is what is required to meet an overcome the unhealthy elements now present in the atmosphere. This increase of vital power, so necessary to meet the extraordinary drafts which an inclemen season makes upon the system and the constitution can be readily acquired by taking from two to three doses of Hostetter's Bitters daily during the winter and spring months The nature of this celebrated restorative is well known to the public It is composed of an absolutely pure diffusive stimulant, medicated with the extracts and juices of the most effective tonic alterative, anti-bilious and laxative roots and herb known to medical science To the combination of these xcellent ingredients, in propotions suitable to the exigencies of enfeebled, languid and diseased systems the great tonic-alterative owes its efficency af a preventive and curative. A course of it commenced now will prevent all danger of fever and ague, rhenmatism or other ailments arising from damp peculiar to the spring months, and also prove a safeguard against the attacks of dyspepsia and liver complaint which so frequently occur at this period of the year.

TWO AMERICAN MAGAZINES.—

The excellence of AMERICAN MAGAZINES has become so well recognized abroad that one of the leading English Papers, the LONDON WEEKLY REGISTER, in a recent issue, thus speaks of SCRIBNER MONTHLY.

"We are constrained to own that SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY carries off the prize against all shilling monthly serials for brilliancy of illustrations and variety of contents. It is simply a wonderful shillen's worth. Nothing can be more charming than the cuts,—full of force and vigor; the light and shade are managed with a truly artistic power. Out of its one and twenty original articles, we really do not know which to choose as best, for each and all are excellent."

Not only is it true that Scribner's Monthly excels the English Magazines, but it is "The Best of the American Monthlies."

In the extent, variety and artistic excellence of its illustration of American themes, it has never been even approached, much less excelled. It has a large page and gives a greater variety in its contents than any other of the Standard American Monthlies.

In literary character, and in the brilliancy and ability of its Editorial Departments, it enjoys an equal pre-eminence.

Its conductors started with the definite aim of making it the best magazine in the world, of which they have for a moment lost sight, and they point with pride and pleasure to the May and June numbers, recently issued and ask for them a candid examination and a careful comparison of their merits with those of other magazines; and they renew their pledge to the public to strive for still higher excellence in the future.

A considerable demand has recently arisen in England for Sir. Nicholas, Scribner's New magazine for boys and girls, one publisher desiring to secure an edition of three thousand of first bound volume (when completed) with his imprint.

The success of St. Nicholas in this country has been even more remarkable than that of Scribner's Monthly. It is pronounced to be "an ideally perfect magazine for children" re and, as is the case with all the best literature for children, it has been found to possess surpassing interest for grown-up readers, as well.

The influence of the periodicals of the day can scarcely be estimated, especially upon the rising generation. Parents and teachers cannot afford to be indifferent to this influence, or careless in relation to the character of the literature furnished to the children outside of their school lessons. In St. Nicholas not only are History, Natural Philosophy, Literature Fine Arts, and manufactures presentd in and attractive way to young readers, but the children are stimulated to seek information for themselves,

The Publishers will send to any address a specimen number of St. Nicholas, postage prepaid, on receipt of ten cents, the bare cost of paper and printing. The magazines are sold by all flrstclass Booksellers and Newsdealers, everywhere.

Home-Made Manures.

In my youthful days it was the general practice to plow a large number of acres, let the results, or crops, be large or small. Later it was found far more profitable to plow less and manure higher. To this end, in addition to barnyard and hog-pen manures we resorted to lime, guano, and fish. The first produced good effects for a time, until enough was mixed with the soil to supply the deficiencies, when it was of no further apparent benefit; guano would produce two or three crops by annual application, but that also soon failed, and its price was enhanced, so that our last resort was fish, which did well while they could be obtained, but they also have become scarce and high, and are not much used. For several years past I have used nothing but barnyard and hog manure, and when using the others always used them merely as stimulants to the above, and never as substitutes, and have learned from experience that "it don't take too much straw to raise wheat, or too large stalks to raise corn." To be sure we have greater facilities for making manure than are possessed in many parts of the land, consisting of natural meadows lying along the shores of the great South Bay, and as I and others live on its headwaters, and no salt water nearer than Fire Island, (except what comes over the Beach Banks,) our part of the bay is as fresh as a mill pond, and consequently, the meadow grass is also fresh, which not only makes better fodder, but better manure, so that we have hardly any need of the stimulants before mentioned.—Exchange.

Suggestions about Wool.

The prospects for wool growers for obtaining good prices on wool, in our opinion, was never better. The amount of sheep in the country over last year is nothing, only one State showing any decided increase, while others remain as before or fell off. There was only enough wool to be had this spring to run the mills until the coming of the present clip, consequently there is no stagnation in that direction. True, woolen goods are lower now than they have been for some time, but they have all along been too high and that is nothing against or argument. The unsettled financial condition of the country has unsettled values and wool is one of the first articles to respond to the monetary barometer, as it is settled that there will be no expansion this season, so values will settle to their legitimate channel, hence wool should start off at the figures ruling before the clip came in. Fifty to fifty-five is the price it should command during the whole season, and if farmers are wide awake it will command that price at once. A word to the wise is sufficient.—Buckeye Farmer.

Always manage to have the cow eating when she is being milked, and when thus occupied she lets down her milk freer, and is less liable to kick or move about than when she can give her whole attention to the milker. It is best to milk diagonal teats at the same time, but always take hold of the off teat first, for if the cow is going to kick at all she will kick first from the side you commence to milk. In milking diagonal teats the left and milks a third and thus the left arm serves as a fender in case she kicks or jumps about. The best stool is made by nailing a foot-square piece of pine board on a piece of 3x4x1 feet, and knees are the most convenient bucket holder. Get close under the cow; work the bucket well under the udder, and the milk will not be near so apt to be spilled as when you put the bucket on the floor and set off as far as possible. Milk quickly, steadily, gently and never leave a cow till you have her last drop. Above all things never yell at her or beat her. Kindness is a cow's most effective master.

The Poultry World believes in "fancy" stock, even at fancy prices. It says the turkey does not attain its maturity until the third year, and the largest, strongest chicks can be secured only from mature parents. So common is the practice of selling off everything at a year old or two that it is almost impossible to get stock two and three years old. In purchasing breeders, it is the best economy to buy the heaviest birds, even at a fancy price. A ten-months' cock, weighing 30 pounds, is cheaper at $50 than a 20 pound bird at $5. Young hens weighing 16 to 18 pounds are cheaper at $20 than 12-pound birds at $5. Large, well formed birds of perfect plumage will dreave their mark upon their progeny. They will not only be more comely to look at, but they will bring much more satisfactory prices, whether we send them to the butcher or to the breeder. The breeder who goes in for the very best stock, taking premium birds when he can get them, and selling nothing from his yard but prime birds, will be likely to make the most money.

Horse Feeding.

A "Young Farmer" gives us his manner of feeding a horse that is doing no other work than the general driving. In the morning his first feed is one quart of oats, after which he has six pounds cut hay; at noon he is first watered and then fed eight pounds cut hay; at night he is watered, given one quart of oats and six pounds of cut hay. his makes a daily allowance of 20 pounds of hay and two quarts of oats, which with hay at $20, oats at 70c., will cost 24½c. He has salt in his crib, and is given a dose of salt and ashes once a week; once a week also he has a quart of finely cut carrots. If the horse works the quanity of oats is doubled. Our correspondent says, "show us your better or cheaper methods of feeding."—Maine Farmer.

A writer in The London Gardener's Chronicle planted early and late peas at the same time in the same drill. The early sorts, he says, "came up first, caught hold of the stakes, supported the others until they got hold of the same, and the result was he had a beautiful crop of peas three weeks before the late varieties were ready to gather, thus giving a double crop off the same ground and with the same sticks." He recommends the plan to persons whose gardens are rich, but limited in extent.

A very insane man indeed is mentioned by a Denver newspaper. He was missed from his home, 60 miles east of Cheyenne, and, after a long search, was discovered in a state of no clothing, nipping grass in a field like unto Nebuchadnezzar. It is supposed that he fancied himself an ox; or possibly he may be a little queer upon the two points of dress reform and a vegatable diet.

Delaware County, Penn., has a venerable cat 22 years old, and a sheep over whose wool 20 Winters have passed.

Before the "fall of man" the only occupation was farming. All other pursuits have been introduced since.

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted from the roots without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs in Bilious Diseases.

If men will enjoy good health, let them use VINEGAR BITTERS as a medicine, and avoid the use of alcoholic stimulants in every form.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc., etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ringworms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics, will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Jaundice.—In all cases of jaundice, rest assured that your liver is not doing its work. The only sensible treatment is to promote the secretion of the bile and favor its removal. For this purpose use VINEGAR BITTERS.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

The Saturday Evening Post.

The Oldest and Best Story Paper Published.

Founded August 4th, A. D. 1821.

For more than half century the SATURDAY EVENING POST has been the

GREAT LITERARY WEEKLY

of the Country, and has ever born a widespread and unblemished reputation for the unsurpassed purity, refinement and excellence of the Serials, Sketches and Miscellaneous reading matter.

It is pre-emicently

THE BEST FAMILY PAPER

that is published in this county, from its never containing anything that would offend the feelings of any one, either in a religious or political sense, or that could not be read at any fireside without objection from the most fastidious.

The circulation of the Saturday Evening Post, though not quite so large perhaps, as its younger contemporaries, is not, like that of some of them, fluctuating. and too often short lived, but based upon the intrinsic merit of the paper itself, and not dependent on any extraneous influences, such as the popularity of individual writers, &c.

SURE, SOLID AND SUBSTANTIAL,

Good, however, as the Saturday Evening Post has been in the past, it is our intention to make it still better in the future, and with this object in view we will effect a marked improvement in every department of the paper and will call to our assistance writers of admitted ability and known reputation.

By increasing its former attractions, and adding many judicious and pleasing novelties by studying how to please and cultivate the popular taste by increasing industry and enterprise, and by enlarged facilities, we hope to make new friends with each and every issue, and continue to maintain the claim of the Saturday Evening Post to its title of The Oldest and the Best of Family Story Papers.

THE GREAT BALOON.

You've heard about the great balloon,
In which Professor Wise
Proposed to go to Europe,
By sailing through the skies,
He proposed to show the people
A quicker way for trips
Than ever had been known before,
By sailing o'er in ship.

Well everything seemed lovely
Upon that Autumn day,
When they began to pump in gas
To bear the barge away,
They pumped and pumped with all their power,
And things seemed nigh adjusted—
When there came an awful crash,
And the mighth bubble busted.

It's ever thus in humun life,
Go whereso'er we may,
The darkest night will oft succeed
The brightest, sunniest day,
There are exceptions to this rule,
Where all the days are fair,—
For one, go down to Jonxsn HALL,
You'll find things all right there.

We've thought it best in cases like this,
This little fact to mention;
You need not fear that they'll inflate
Beyond their power of retention.
And when they undertake to go
Their geer's so well adjusted,
They'll move straigh forward to their work,
With no fear of being "busted."
